

To: Ethics Boards

Subject: English content in Acknowledgement section in the Unify Screenshots

Date: 1-Aug-2025

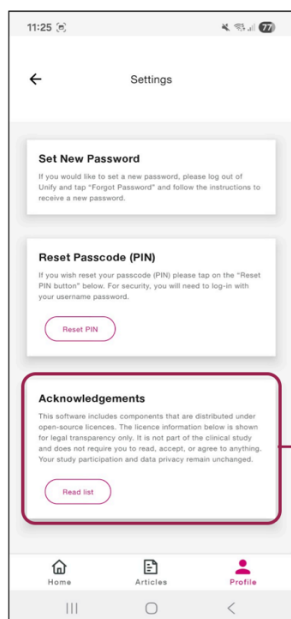

In the study-specific UTS app, patients can navigate to the Settings to access the Acknowledgement section, which contains a read list. Please refer to the screenshots below for guidance. These example screenshots are part of the Unify Screenshot documents.

The read list provides information related to Open-Source software licenses integrated into the UTS app. Displaying this information is a legal requirement, the OSS license list ensures compliance with software licensing. The list contains only general OSS license details and does not include any disease-specific or study-specific information. This information is displayed passively and does not require user acknowledgement during the study.

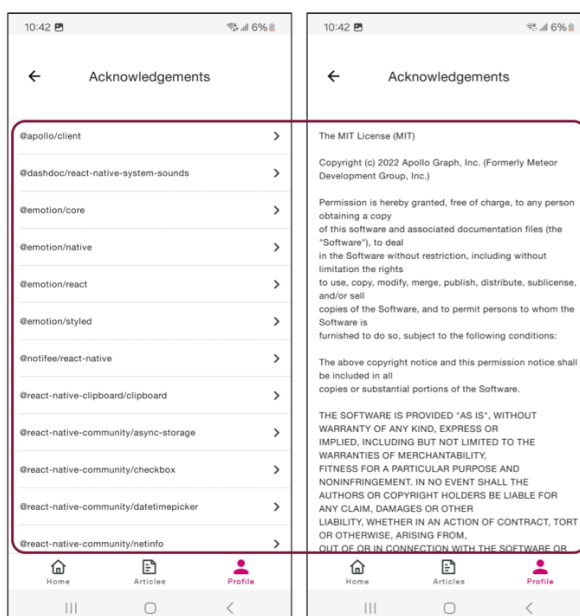

Within the Acknowledgements card, patients will first see an explanatory message translated into local languages to indicate that no consent or action is required:

"This software includes components that are distributed under open-source licenses. The license information below is shown for legal transparency only. It is not part of the clinical study and does not require you to read, accept, or agree to anything. Your study participation and data privacy remain unchanged".

To ensure compliance with legal standards and to prevent translation-related inconsistencies, the detailed list of open-source licenses will remain in its original English form and will not be translated into local languages. Because the underlying software packages in the UTS app may be updated or changed over time, the full list of OSS licenses is not included in the Ethics Submission Packages. If you have any further questions or need additional information, please reach out to respect site and will provide additional details through them.

This content is translated into local languages

This content is not translated

Best regards,

Evinova